LOS ANGELES, Aug. 7 /PRNewswire/ -- With all of the doom and gloom raining over today's radio airwaves, Jonathan Rose, CEO of Capital Gold Group, Inc., featured on "The Gold Show", is shining a light for listeners. Focusing on the solutions instead of the problems, Mr. Rose helps investors understand not only how domestic and international news events impact their financial futures, but also why gold, as a store of wealth, is the key to a balanced and protected portfolio in an unstable financial market.

"The Gold Show" has captured the attention of millions of investors nationwide who are concerned with preserving the buying power of their money in an economy which is facing escalating inflation and a devaluing dollar. Listeners learn how adding physical gold assets to a portfolio full of traditional dollar-based investments such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds, CDs, and money markets provides that "insurance" they are looking for.

With a record-breaking 69 bank failures so far in 2009, and savings accounts and CDs earning barely 1% in annual interest, savers are finding it increasingly difficult to justify rolling over maturing CDs or leaving their cash in a bank account. Their question is, where else can they put their money that will be safe and potentially provide a higher yield. Gold has increased over 300% in value since 2001.

As a result, thousands of Gold Show listeners are protecting their long-term savings and retirements by directly owning physical gold in their IRAs or choosing direct delivery of gold to their front door as a hedge against inflation, leverage against currency devaluation, and protection and preservation of buying power in a financial landscape that the average investor is not prepared to navigate. A proven safe haven, a sector of the investment portfolio held in physical gold increases the level of diversification and thereby helps to minimize risk and limit volatility in the portfolio overall. Thousands of people each day find their solution in tangible gold assets.

Not only has "The Gold Show" expanded its base of listeners around the country, but it has recently been featured in the Business Top 100 on iTunes. A recent podcast of the "The Gold Show" was downloaded over three thousand times, creating a tremendous influx of loyal subscribers and making it the most sought after program educating investors on ownership of physical gold.

The iTunes Podcast Directory on the iTunes Store allows potential listeners to browse, find, preview, and subscribe to over 3,000 podcasts -- radio shows or other audio programs available for download over the Internet.

Listeners may subscribe to "The Gold Show" weekly podcast at www.safeasgold.com and clicking on the link "Subscribe to Podcast". Questions or comments submitted to askmrrrose.com may be addressed in upcoming editions of "The Gold Show", which currently airs on a number of Clear Channel, CBS, Citadel, and Salem Communications.

When investors ask the common question as to why they can't just own a gold ETF or gold shares, Mr. Rose is quick to point out that "paper gold does not provide the protection and preservation aspects of the physical metal. Gold is the missing link in most portfolios today. Every investor needs gold as portfolio insurance."

Also discussed in the radio show with Mr. Rose is Capital Gold Group's Gold Affiliate Program, designed to allow investors to acquire knowledge of gold as well as gold assets through their financial advisor, whom they already trust with their other investments.

Capital Gold Group, Inc. is one of the premier providers of physical gold and other precious metal assets in the country today. Jonathan Rose is a renowned speaker and commentator on gold markets worldwide
